

PHILA. WANTS TO INTERVENE IN SUIT OVER CANAL WATER

Takes Action in Effort to Protect Quantity and Quality of Water

WANTS PRIOR RIGHTS

Contends City Had Privilege of Using the Water Before Canal Co. Had the Right

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—In an effort to protect the quantity and quality of the water which the City is entitled to take from the Delaware River, City Solicitor Joseph Sharfsin today took steps in the State Supreme Court to intervene in the litigation over the Delaware Division Canal, a 60-mile waterway extending from Easton to Bristol.

The City Solicitor asserted that the Canal Company sought to be relieved of the unprofitable section of the canal while retaining the more profitable part to the damage of the rights of the City in the water of the Delaware River. Today the City's attorney obtained a rule on the Canal Company and other defendant corporations to show cause why the City should not be allowed to intervene in the litigation. The rule was made returnable May 23, when the State Supreme Court will be sitting at Harrisburg.

The petition of the City solicitor avers that the City of Philadelphia, as provided for by the State laws, has been availing itself since 1854 to take all the water necessary for present or future needs from the Delaware River.

"The City depends," says the petition, "on the Delaware River at present for more than one-half of its daily water supply, and for its constantly increasing demands for water by virtue of its rapid and continuous growth for domestic use, manufacturing, industrial, sanitary, fire protection and other municipal purposes."

It is declared that the City has availed itself of the rights to the waters since 1854, while the Canal company had no vested right until 1858 and that it did not exercise that power so far as using the water for manufacturing supply purposes until many years later. It is further stated that the sale of the water by the Delaware Canal Company interferes with the right of the City and deprives it of a property right.

Sharfsin, if allowed to intervene in the action begun against the Canal Company by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in February, 1937, will ask for a determination of the rights of the City to the use of the water prior to the Canal company. He will also ask that the company and the other defendants named in the suit be restrained from interfering with the present City water needs after consideration of the rights of the States of New York and New Jersey in the Delaware River water, and further that the company be enjoined from interfering with the quality of the water at the intake pipes.

Margiotti Speaks Here
In Campaign for Governor

Another candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor invaded Bristol, yesterday, when former Attorney-General of Pennsylvania, Charles J. Margiotti, spoke here. Last Thursday, Lieutenant-Governor Thomas Kennedy made a brief speech here from the balcony of the Keystone Hotel. Margiotti yesterday spoke in Mutual Aid Hall, Wood street.

Margiotti, recently dismissed from office by Governor Earle, was introduced by Luigi Galzerano, who spoke in Italian.

Margiotti, an independent candidate for the Democratic nomination, spoke for approximately a half hour and gave a verbal lashing to Governor George Earle, David L. Lawrence and Matthew H. McCloskey. He charged Lawrence and McCloskey with selling legislation, crookedness in managing the affairs of the State and mentioned a deal for the purchase of 80 trucks, totaling $474,066.52, of which he charged Lawrence and McCloskey received $50,000. According to the speaker, Lawrence and McCloskey arranged the specifications, so that only two firms could submit bids.

Margiotti also took a fling at Senator Guffey and John L. Lewis, who he said has "no business dictating the policies of Pennsylvania."

Kennedy, he characterized as a "rubber stamp" candidate.

Referring to the candidacy of Charles Alvin Jones for the Democratic nomination, Margiotti said: "Who is he?"

Margiotti came here from Doylestown where he addressed a group of supporters at three o'clock. He was scheduled to arrive here at five but did not reach here until 5:30. He left Bristol for Norristown where he spoke last evening.

LANGHORNE, May 12.—The marriage of Miss Ruth M. Worthington, Newtown, to Benjamin E. Bodine, Woodbourne, took place in the Presbyterian Manse, Friday evening, the Rev. Henry Cunningham officiating. They were attended by Lewis Pickering, Woodbourne. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip the couple will reside in Woodbourne.

IF THE SHOE PINCHES

A rose is a rose is a rose said a Gertrude Stein or did she? And a shoe is a shoe is a shoe says you or is it? Perhaps it is not a shoe but it is discomfort is unnecessary effort is abnormal action of the foot is pain. Feet are horse's feet are dog's feet are chiefly human feet and that is where shoes come in.

Here we leave Miss Stein and go on to serious business. The importance of the foot and the care of the foot, upon which the weight and force of the body in motion pounds continually, and wisdom in choosing shoes, are beginning to get due scientific attention. The well-being of the foot is so essential to the well-being of the human body that the medical school of the University of Rochester has established a gait laboratory under the direction of Dr. R. Plato Schwartz, to whom feet are machines which must be studied in minutest detail so that we may learn why and how they get out of kilter.

Now, be it understood, the University of Rochester does not make or sell shoes, but since the establishment of Dr. Schwartz's "lab" nearly a quarter of a million pairs of shoes have been made by manufacturers according to his principles and the Rochester searcher has been honored for his scientific work by the medals of the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

Dr. Schwartz, whose work is supported by money from the Rockefeller Foundation and large contributions by shoe makers, has set up elaborate equipment which aims to do for the foot what electrocardiograph does for the human heart, a machine which both indicates how we walk and records the part played by each little foot bone showing to the thousandth of the second and the inch how heel, toe and arch perform their functions, how each bone, muscle and ligament is normally or abnormally strained. The researcher who is giving his knowledge of science and his every effort to this cause hopes to wake the world to a new foot and shoe consciousness.

ALASKA GETS AIR MAIL

Inauguration of year-round air mail service between Juneau and Fairbanks, Alaska, extends the benefits of swift communication to one of the last outposts of the Nation. While there was some sporadic air service in Alaska in the past, for eight months of the year towns in the interior, a thousand miles from civilization, were dependent upon dog sled communication, which often required weeks to reach the farther inland points.

The dog sled of song and story played a picturesque and historic part in the life of the frozen North. Now it too has succumbed to the march of civilization to join in memory the stage coach, the pony express and the covered wagon.

Today only Nome of gold rush fame remains isolated for a large part of the year in the entire United States. Perhaps some day it too will see the regular landing of airplanes, although its great isolation and sparse population would seem to be insurmountable obstacles.

"CONTRABAND" by Dennis Wheatley

SYNOPSIS

Gregory Sallust, young English private investigator, is greatly interested in the affairs of the beautiful Hungarian girl, Sabine Szentes, for two reasons: first, because her beauty and charms are irresistible; second, because she is associated with Lord Gavin Fortescue, a sinister, shadowy figure in international affairs. Fortescue is a strange looking little man, curiously misshapen. Sallust knows him by reputation and has begun to suspect that he and Sabine are concerned in certain illegal activities which Gregory is investigating for Sir Pellinore Gwaine-Cust, a British industrial giant. Gregory and Sabine have become friends, although she will tell him nothing of herself or her relations with Fortescue. In saving a Scotland Yard detective from a brawl in a cafe near Deauville, France, where Sabine had lured the victim, Sallust gains possession of a mysterious coded telegram dropped during the fight. Sabine refuses to enlighten Gregory on the telegram, warning him it is dangerous to know too much. She agrees to spend the following day with the infatuated Gregory. Dining at a roadside inn, Sabine is filled with apprehension for Gregory's safety when she sees "The Limper" one of Lord Gavin's henchmen watching them. Later, when Gregory goes to get his car, he is attacked by a man who throws pepper in his eyes. Sabine disappears. Returning to England, Gregory's suspicions of Lord Gavin Fortescue are confirmed by Sir Pellinore and Gregory calls on Inspector Marrowfat of Scotland Yard to try to establish a working agreement with the police.

CHAPTER VIII

Superintendent Marrowfat raised his eyebrows again. "But what's your interest in the matter, outside the lady, may I ask? It's hardly your business to ferret out Lord Gavin's Fortescue's affairs."

"No, but I am engaged on a private investigation for Sir Pellinore Gwaine-Cust at the moment, and the two things may link up together."

"What sort of thing are you investigating?"

"That is Sir Pellinore's affair, and if he hasn't told you it's hardly my place to do so. He was hoping though, I think, that you might agree to my working with your people."

Superintendent Marrowfat shook his large round head. "I'm sorry sir, I'm afraid we can't agree to that. You see it would be quite contrary to regulations and I don't think the matter Inspector Wells was sent over to look into can have any bearing on a private issue which appears to rest between Sir Pellinore Gwaine-Cust and Lord Gavin Fortescue. We're very much obliged for the information you've brought us, all the same."

The Superintendent was glancing through the papers in the wallet. "You didn't happen to find a telegram in this by any chance, did you?" he asked after a moment.

"I'm afraid not," Gregory lied glibly. He had never been particularly keen on police cooperation and since his offer of assistance had been rejected he had no intention of letting them have a sight of what he considered to be his best card.

The Superintendent extended a large plump hand. "Well, much obliged to you I'm sure, and I'm very grateful to you for having come to Wells' help so promptly when they were giving him a roughhouse. Good morning to you, and thank you."

As the door closed behind Gregory the big Superintendent suddenly became amazingly active. He grabbed his desk telephone and, after a moment, bellowed down it.

"That you, Wells? I've just had that bird here who helped you out at Trouville. Gregory Sallust's his name—a clever devil if ever there was one—he wanted to work in with us but, of course, I couldn't have that. Listen though, you're the lucky one, Lord Gavin Fortescue's in this. It'll be the biggest thing that's happened in years and it means promotion for you if you handle it right. Come up to me at once, but put some good men on to trial Sallust as he leaves the building. He's not to be lost sight of day or night. He's pinched that telegram, but he's going to lead us to something or my name's not Marrowfat."

From Scotland Yard Gregory walked round the corner to Westminster Bridge and took the underground down to Gloucester Road, where he had rooms comprising the first floor of No. 272.

He could well have afforded better quarters but the building was the property of one George Rudd who had been his batman in the war and had ever since remained his devoted henchman.

Mr. Rudd eked out a precarious living by letting the upper floors of his house, generally to students at the London University, and doing odd jobs for the retail grocer who had the old-fashioned little shop on the ground floor.

When Gregory returned he found Rudd in his sitting room polishing some 18th-century silver hilted rapiers. He was a medium-sized man with yellowish hair, close cropped and bristling at the top of his head, but allowed to grow into a lock in front, which he carefully trained in a well greased curve across his forehead. A small fair mustache graced his upper lip but, as he always kept it neatly trimmed, it failed to hide the fact that his teeth badly needed the attention of the dentist. His eyes were blue, quick, humorous and friendly.

"Like to come on a trip with me to France?" Gregory asked him.

"Not 'arf, sir." The ex-soldier removed the butt of a Goldfield that dangled from his lower lip. "Is it gay Paree, or one of them places on the coast, where the girls from the Folies Bergères disport themselves in pocket handkerchiefs during the summer months?"

"No, this is business. I've got a quick war on. By the bye, we shall be flying."

"Must we go risking our necks that way as well, sir?" asked Rudd rufely. "No nasturtiums on you as a pilot sir, but I always feel it's more homely like in a nice comfortable train myself."

Gregory grinned. "No, we've got to be birdmen this trip and it's probable we shall be flying backwards and forwards across the Channel until we're sick of the sight of the damn thing."

"Very good, Mr. Gregory, just as you say," agreed Rudd philosophically. "But I hopes we have long enough on the other side between trips to knock off a bottle or two of vin rouge in one of them 'es-tamines'."

The washing may be done by hand or with a washing machine. First, shake the blanket to remove all loose dirt and dust. Make a lukewarm mild soap solution. If using a machine, put the blanket in and allow the machine to run three to five minutes. If laundering by hand, avoid rubbing as that has a tendency to "felt" the blanket. Too hot water and strong soap have the same effect.

Squeeze the blanket dry or put it through the wringer with very loose roller tension. Rinse at least twice in clear water of the same temperature as the first wash water. This is very important if the blanket is to remain soft and fluffy.

Hang the blanket lengthwise over the clothes line with the same amount of weight on each side. Use no clothes pins. If possible, choose a warm breezy day for washing blankets. The quicker the washing and drying is done the better the results. When thoroughly dried, brush the entire surface to bring up the nap. Press the binding if necessary.

Care in storing blankets is as essential as care in washing. If cedar lined chests are not available, wrap the blankets in newspaper or brown paper, and seal or tie securely to protect them from moths and dust. Store packages on a closet shelf or other clean, airy place.

prevail because class-consciousness has been fomented." Assemblyman Stockham declared. Continuing, he said:

"Out of our own industrial and financial collapse came certain ideals of a greater security for the masses. But they have been debauched by scamps who have stolen the inexperienced dreamer's lead because they were not normally sound."

"The fundamentals of our government are attacked, years of honest endeavor of the collective efforts of Americans are belittled, our great ideals are smeared with contempt. Lacking moral stamina they have succumbed to political chicanery."

Assemblyman Stockham declared that the removal of the merit system debauches public service, that elections influenced by government funds corrupt the ballot; that dishonest bookkeeping robs the wage-earner of social security and encourages extravagance; official conspiracy at lawlessness lowers the morale, and truth demands moral and intellectual honesty in official statements.

"We must heed these dangers and get morally straight or we shall succumb to the loss of our three-fold government," he continued. "The Chief Executive has already abrogated much of the legislative power. Only an indignant public outcry thwarted the destruction of the judiciary. Even now the press is threatened with a gag for daring to challenge the New Deal. Are these things not warning enough?"

"We do not ruthlessly attack the general plan to restore our economic balance but we must fight the hypocrisy and corruption of this Democratic administration. We need to contact the independent voter who knows not blind loyalty to a party but who votes what he thinks is right. The New Deal caught his fancy. He is thinking again. Talk with him now!"

"When thieves disagree, murder will out. We are witnessing in Pennsylvania the vaunted Earle Administration being condemned and torn by its own family. Their infamous accusations imply a corruption never before experienced in American history and this will be multiplied many fold from other parts when the truth shall prevail."

"It is my prediction that the hopes, the fears of these lean years shall be met in Pennsylvania's hills in November next to give hope and courage to a hard-pressed people. Man the guns, you Mollie Pitchers."

James E. Groom, president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, pointed out the important part that women can play in the political situation in Pennsylvania today.

"Why should women of Pennsylvania not take a more active part in politics this year?" Groom asked. "The women are the ones who have to suffer the most as a result of economic conditions in general; they should take a more active part than ever before. We must eliminate the hypocrisy in politics today and get rid of the rich play-boy politicians."

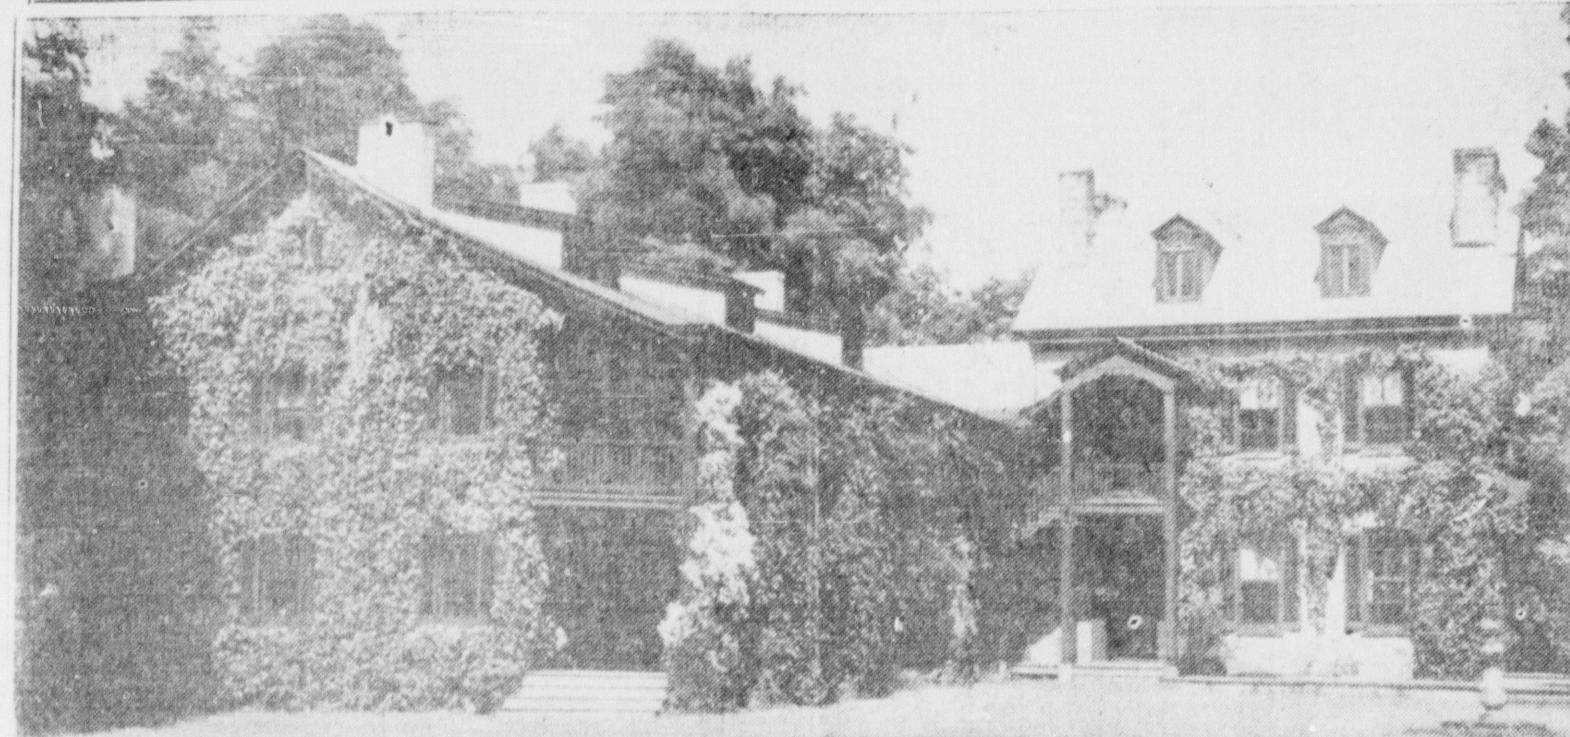

Mr. Groom said that in a recent survey which he made of 79 industrial institutions in Philadelphia regarding what the officials of those concerns thought about future business, he found that nearly all of them refused to make any predictions. When asked why, all but a very few said it was because they "lacked confidence in our national government."

Miss Nancy Highly, of Norristown, vice-chairman of the Republican executive committee of Montgomery county, was introduced at the afternoon session. She announced that a very thorough checkup of the voting districts in Montgomery shows that the entire county is for Judge Arthur James for Governor and her prediction was that Montgomery will go for James by over 20,000 majority.

come to light, was just a little family feud, which must now be forgotten in order to keep the State back of "Our Great President." And such is the nature of the voters that probably a good many of them will be thus persuaded, though there are certainly signs of a growing skepticism.

In the meantime, so far as the primaries are concerned, the Roosevelt Administration is pursuing a surface, but entirely false, neutrality. Underneath it is for the Guffey-Lewis ticket, not so much because it wants to be but because it has to be. There will be no letters or speeches from the President such as he has written and intends to make for Senator Barkley, in Kentucky. And there will be no endorsements from James Roosevelt, the impulsive, young millionaire son and White House secretary, whose insurance income this year is said to be even larger than last. There are two reasons for this caution. One, of course, is that both factions claim to be pro New Deal and there exists no valid excuse for openly opposing the Earle nomination. The other is because the odds seem to be in favor of the Earle-Jones ticket, and open support of the Guffey-Lewis slate might involve Mr. Roosevelt in a defeat.

NEVERTHELESS, what Mr. Lewis and Mr. Guffey want of the Administration is being given them. Of this the Earle faction is entirely aware. Mr. Farley, who makes no pretense of political piety, is standing sturdily for his old friend Joe, and the ineffable Mr. Harry Hopkins, who continually prates of his nonpartisanship and is not really nonpartisan at all, is doing the same thing. It is quite well recognized that if the Guffey-Lewis ticket is saved, its salvation lies in the WPA relief workers and the Negro voters. To a considerable extent these overlap, an extraordinary percentage of those on relief being Negroes. The total Negro vote is around 300,000, and the total WPA enrollment is not far below that figure.

SO FAR as the Negro vote is concerned, if Mr. Guffey does not get it with fair solidity it will be strange indeed, as no man ever nursed a racial voting class longer, more tenderly or more expensively than he has nursed it.

As for the WPA, despite the breast-beating protests of Mr. Hopkins of his aloofness from politics, and regardless of his meaningless letters to workers, stuffily telling them they can vote as they please, there is no question at all that the relief organization in Pennsylvania will be used to the limit by the Lewis-Guffey machine. Mr. Hopkins can be as remote and aloof as he pleases, but that is the fact and there isn't an informed man in Pennsylvania who does not know it. Mr. Guffey's friends make no bones about it at all. The only question in their minds is whether Mr. Lewis' coal miners, said to be a little resentful over a recent assessment, will be as solid as they hope the WPA workers and the Negroes will be.

IT IS pretty well conceded that all three groups will have to be almost completely solid to save the Guffey-Lewis ticket, but if that solidarity is not achieved it will not be through lack of effort upon the part of Mr. Guffey or lack of help from the Administration. The national interest in this unsavory and sordid struggle lies in the fact that the successful faction will control the big Pennsylvania delegation to the next Democratic National Convention—and that means, of course, that the leader of that faction may easily be in position to determine the next Democratic Presidential nominee.

Looking over the lot, that isn't a pleasing thought—no matter which side wins.

Chief Justice Gives Warning

Washington, May 12—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today warned that powerful new government boards and bureaus must conduct themselves with judicial "impartiality and independence" to safeguard Democratic institutions.

Defending the courts, the Chief Justice, speaking before the American Law Institute, declared that there is a vital need for "continued respect for the judicial tradition of independence and impartiality."

The Chief Justice devoted a large part of his annual address to the Institute to a discussion of the rising power of government boards, which have taken over many functions of the court.

Citing the need of fair play by government boards and bureaus, the Chief Justice praised the Interstate Commerce Commission as an example to the many new bureaucratic agencies.

LIFE OF ALUMINUM
EXTENDED BY CARE

Certain questions crop up as regularly as the seasons in Cooking School. Among them are "Why do cakes fall?" "How can I make a good cup of coffee?" and "What is the correct way to clean aluminum?" Proper care adds years to the long life of aluminum, as well as retaining its original attractive appearance.

After each use, the aluminum utensil should be cleaned to free it from grease and food. The pan should be washed in warm water, rubbed briskly with fine steel wool and soap, rinsed with clear hot water and thoroughly dried with a clean towel. Don't expect your aluminum ware to retain its luster if you wash it in greasy water and leave it dripping on the stove, or on a hook.

Paper toweling will wipe out the first grease and save your hands and the dish water.

Some soaps and cleaners contain a strong alkali, such as caustic soda, sal soda or potash and have an injurious effect on the aluminum—as well as on the hands. To be sure the soap or cleaner used is absolutely safe, select one which is not harmful to the hands.

If food or grease is badly burned on the surface of an aluminum utensil, the pan should be filled with water, covered, placed on the stove and allowed to boil hard for five minutes. This will loosen the burned food. Then scrape the pan with a wooden spoon or clothes pin and restore the original polish with a final rubbing with steel wool cleanser. An occasional cleaning with a good silver polish will preserve the high polish on the outside of aluminum utensils.

BUGLE CORPS FROM SIX STATES ENTER CONTEST

Over 1000 Men and Boys, Members of American Legion Corps Groups, Enter

NEW YORK, MAY 15TH

More than a thousand men and boys, members of American Legion Posts and Squadrions from six states, will gather in Madison Square Garden, Sunday, May 15, to compete in the biggest indoor Drum and Bugle contest of the year, sponsored by the President Borough of Manhattan Post 84, of New York.

Seven senior Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, and ten junior corps or squadrions, will play and manoeuvre throughout the afternoon and evening before the watchful and critical gaze of West Point judges, who will award prizes.

The senior State champions of Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Connecticut, and the junior state titleholders of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Connecticut, have entered the competition. The junior contests begin at two o'clock Sunday afternoon and the senior competitors at 8:15.

With flags flying, the corps, togged in full dress uniforms, are expected to put on one of the greatest demonstrations since the last National American Legion Convention. As a spectacle it should surpass in brilliance the National Drum and Bugle Corps contest held at the Polo Grounds, last Fall.

The American Legion posts which will be represented, Sunday, May 15th, at the Garden, are in the Senior group: Wilmington Post 1, of Wilmington, Del., champions of Delaware; Henry H. Houston Post, of Philadelphia, champions of Pennsylvania;

Stratford Drum and Bugle Corps, champions of Connecticut; Morristown Drum and Bugle Corps, champions of New Jersey; Frobisher Post Drum Corps, of Kearney, N. J.; East Orange Drum Corps, of East Orange, N. J.; and Hackensack Corps, of Hackensack, N. J.

Junior corps participating in the contest are: Nittany Post 245, of State College, Pa., champions of Pennsylvania; Hamilton Squadron 29, of Baltimore, champions of Maryland; Penn Treaty Cadets, of Philadelphia; Robert W. Bracken Post, of Bristol, Pa.; Wallingford Squadron, of Wallingford, Conn., champions of Connecticut; Hudson County Boys Club, of Hoboken, N. J.; Holy Name Cadets of Garfield, N. J.; Grand Street Boys Post Drum Corps, of Manhattan, champions of New York State; William Sheridan Police Post Sons of Legionnaires Corps, of Brooklyn, N. Y. State titleholders in the Sons of American Legionnaires Division; and the Unionport Squadron 1065, of the Bronx, which finished second to the Sheridan Post, in Troy, last August.

THE BRISTOL

Burgess Meredith, star of both the Broadway stage production and the RKO Radio screen version of Maxwell Anderson's play "Winterset," returns to the screen in "There Goes the Groom," a new hilarious comedy also from RKO Radio.

In sharp contrast to the sombre role he had in his first picture, Meredith is seen in a part that will rouse gales of laughter.

His role is that of a young college graduate who returns from a successful gold search in Alaska to claim the girl who promised to wait when he sailed away. The complications are provided by the fact his fiancee has

MODERNISTIC EXHIBIT AIDS APPLE CAMPAIGN

Apple consumer exhibits have gone modernistic, judging from the display in April at the Albany Progress Exhibition. The exhibit also will be shown in Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and other cities, in connection with the ten apples are packed, graded and what ten weeks' campaign to develop a market for approximately 3,500,000 buying apples.

The modernistic exhibition, in royal purple and French gray motif, consists of five deep recesses in each of which is a different kind of apple. The fruit poses in effective spotlights, too, for a reflected light from above in each recess gels down on the apples in storage.

"A Wise Woman Knows Her Apples" is the subject of the visual consumer appeal, which is counted on to help push the remainder of the largest apple crop in New York State in the last 12 years.

Applesauce varies according to the apples used and the added flavor may be changed, too, with cinnamon, nutmeg, or grated lemon rind. Serve tart applesauce over ice cream, or over angel food or sponge cake for a quick and nourishing dessert. And for an extra treat, fold one-half cup of applesauce into a cup of whipped cream and a grating exhibit, showing how sauce before serving.

Statement By Intelligencer Company Publishers of Doylestown Daily Intelligencer

Charles M. Meredith, Jr., Editor of the Quakertown Free Press and candidate for Republican nomination for Senator, in the columns of the Free Press and by the use of circulars distributed over the County, has conducted a campaign of misrepresentation directed against the Intelligencer Company and its officers alleging that the Intelligencer Company has received unwarranted business and compensation for public printing and advertising.

He adroitly arranges a table or column of figures which he states represent the amount the "Grundy-Bean" papers receive annually for printing and advertising.

This table is so unfair, misleading, and untrue, the publishers of the INTELLIGENCER make this statement so the public may be informed how few Mr. Meredith has juggled and misrepresented the facts and figures to stir up prejudice against us. Included among his allegations are:

He alleges the Grundy-Bean papers receive ANNUALLY $200 for publishing the Constitutional Amendments. The INTELLIGENCER published the Constitutional Amendments but once during the last five years, at regular rates approved by the Administration at Harrisburg.

He alleges the INTELLIGENCER receives $500.00 ANNUALLY for publishing State funds in banks. During the last five years the INTELLIGENCER published but two escutcheons of funds in banks for which one bill was $10.75 and the other $26.25.

He alleges the INTELLIGENCER receives $500.00 ANNUALLY for publishing notices of unclaimed private funds in banks. The revenue received by the INTELLIGENCER for publishing such notices during the last ten years would not amount to $50.00.

He alleges the Grundy-Bean papers receive $4000 ANNUALLY for "Register's appraiser," whatever that means. There is no such service connected with the newspaper, but if he infers, the INTELLIGENCER derives some benefit from the salary paid the Register's appraiser which is $2400 annually and not $4000, that innuendo is a deliberate and malicious falsehood.

He alleges the Grundy-Bean papers participate in the expenditure of $2000 annually for court house job work, bonding and insuring the officials. The INTELLIGENCER never was in the insurance or bonding business.

He alleges the Grundy-Bean papers receive $1500 annually for publishing county tax liens. There is no publication of county tax liens by the county.

FURTHER, THE PUBLIC IS ENTITLED TO KNOW THESE FACTS

Mr. Meredith advertises he is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, but he does not say he got his college education through a free scholarship, procured for him through the efforts of his former friends, whom he now so viciously attacks.

In the early stages of the campaign Mr. Meredith made a direct statement affecting his candidacy to a group of men, and within thirty-six hours repudiated that statement.

In one of his first printed "platforms," he announced "I am for Judge Arthur James for Governor," but after seeing Pinchot, he now says "I am supporting Gifford Pinchot for Governor." Does a candidate with such wavering convictions appeal to the Republican voters of Bucks County?

Will the Republican voters of Bucks County support a candidate whose campaign manager, Charles M. Meredith, Sr., threatens to disrupt the Republican party in Bucks County if "Charles" is not nominated? On April 18, 1938, Charles M. Meredith, Sr., wrote a letter of which he sent a copy to another candidate for office. We quote from the copy of that letter:

"UNLESS CHARLES IS NOMINATED THIS YEAR, A FEUD IS ON THE WAY TO LAST SOME OF US THE REST OF OUR LIVES. IF CHARLES IS NOT NOMINATED, I WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS NEXT TIME ON THE REPUBLICAN TICKET AND THERE WILL ALSO BE A PRE-EMPTED TICKET. THAT MEANS PROBABLY NO MORE REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMEN FROM THIS DISTRICT, AND TWO YEARS AFTER THAT BEGINS, NO MORE REPUBLICAN SENATORS."

Can labor support an editor of a newspaper who pays his employees partly in cash and partly in "orders" on local stores.

Repudiate at the Primary Election this distorter of truth and facts, who by his misrepresentations, mud slinging and calumny heaped on his opponent and private citizens, must convince the voters of Bucks County he lacks the qualifications for the office he seeks.

EDGEY SOFTBALL TEAM WINS OVER HULMEVILLE

HULMEVILLE, May 12—Edgey's softball team built up an early 6-0 lead in the first two frames in their tilt with the Hulmeville girls here yesterday, but had to ward off the home team's desperate attempt to overcome that margin in the late innings to win out by a 7-5 count.

After Edgey stepped out to that 6-0 margin, Hulmeville cut the lead in half with a trio themselves in the third, then after the visiting outfit put over their final counter in the first of the fifth, Hulmeville added single markers in each of the fifth and sixth frames but couldn't do anything about the two-run deficit in the seventh chapter and so went down to defeat at the hands of Miss Edna Penny-packer's girls.

Aside from that three run surge Hulmeville put on in the third, Jeanette Leinhauer, who did Edgey's mound work for the first four frames, went along rather smoothly behind the 6-run lead, striking out 11 opponents. Shores went in for Edgey in the fifth and was touched for the last two Hulmeville tallies. Gousine, Miss Siecholtz's starting pitcher, went out in the fourth in favor of Harrison, who finished up.

Barra, with a double and triple, led the home team at bat, while Jeanette Leinhauer drove out three hits to lead the winners. Palowez and Trzecuk each had a pair of safe blows for Edgey.

JERSEY'S SPEED BOY

Bobbie Sall of Paterson

Since Bobbie Sall rebuilt his great Miller racing car he is going to be mighty hard to catch on any kind of track, and when he cuts loose at Langhorne on Sunday afternoon, May 15, some old-time records are sure to fall.

DUKE NALON AND HENDERSON TO RACE

Two of the finest racing cars that ever scorched mid-western tracks have been added to the entries at Langhorne Speedway on Sunday, May 15, with Duke Nalon of Chicago and Bud Henderson of Akron as the professional chauffeurs.

Built by Floyd Dreyer of Dayton, noted speed engineer, and considered two of the prettiest cars campaigning the major circuits, they are certain to prove troublesome to some 50 other racing aces in the opening 100 mile meet, in the opinion of officials.

Henderson's car is credited with making the fastest time ever turned on the high banked Winchester speedway and has also established many other track records throughout Indiana and Ohio. Nalon's car was tested out at the Reading inaugural on April 24 where he finished in third position.

Both top-ranking drivers and particularly potent on the dirt tracks, Nalon and Henderson will bring considerable strength to the western contingent of speed stars who are invading the east for the classic. Ted Horn of Los Angeles and Chet Gardner of Long Beach are already here with their fast Miller cars and expect to begin speed workouts next week while Tony Willman of Milwaukee, who is also hard to beat on any type of track, is reported to be on his way east with his rebuilt Cragar.

At least eight of the drivers competing at Langhorne at the opening meet, May 15th, will participate in the Indianapolis 500 mile race on Memorial day, records show. Nalon has been nominated to drive a new speed sensation owned by Leon Duray, former speedway star, while Ted Torn, the runner up for national championship honors for the last two years, will again drive for the veteran Harry Hartz and is an early book favorite to cop the $40,000 prize.

BALL GAME CANCELLED

Owing to the damp and unsatisfactory weather for baseball, "Ed" Sullivan, manager of the West Philadelphia Club, and manager Landreth of the Farmers, thought it best to call off tonight's game at Landreth Ball Park, as they believed it will be too cool for persons to enjoy a game in the open. This postponed game will be played later in the season when weather is warmer.

EMBARRASSED FIREMEN

NATICK, Mass.—(INS)—"Hottest" story of the year broke at Natick when South Natick firemen, unable to fight a blaze in their own engine-house because of lack of long ladders, called on firemen from the Central station for aid.

Built by Floyd Dreyer of Dayton, noted speed engineer, and considered two of the prettiest cars campaigning the major circuits, they are certain to prove troublesome to some 50 other racing aces in the opening 100 mile meet, in the opinion of officials.

Henderson's car is credited with making the fastest time ever turned on the high banked Winchester speedway and has also established many other track records throughout Indiana and Ohio. Nalon's car was tested out at the Reading inaugural on April 24 where he finished in third position.

Both top-ranking drivers and particularly potent on the dirt tracks, Nalon and Henderson will bring considerable strength to the western contingent of speed stars who are invading the east for the classic. Ted Horn of Los Angeles and Chet Gardner of Long Beach are already here with their fast Miller cars and expect to begin speed workouts next week while Tony Willman of Milwaukee, who is also hard to beat on any type of track, is reported to be on his way east with his rebuilt Cragar.

At least eight of the drivers competing at Langhorne on Sunday afternoon, May 15th, will participate in the Indianapolis 500 mile race on Memorial day, records show. Nalon has been nominated to drive a new speed sensation owned by Leon Duray, former speedway star, while Ted Torn, the runner up for national championship honors for the last two years, will again drive for the veteran Harry Hartz and is an early book favorite to cop the $40,000 prize.

RECORD IN COYOTES

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(INS)—Bert Minoletti, president of the McCloudish and game development association, believes he has set some kind of a record. Of the 52 coyotes bagged by members during the past year, 34 were slain by Minoletti.
